CHICKENS AND PIGEONS CAUSE TROUBLE AMONG MOKENA NEIGHBORS

Chickens and pigeons have been raising havoc among neighbors in Mokena. The village board has had many complaints and Tuesday night more complaints were received. Mrs. Ferguson appeared before the board and lodged complaints against Geo. Marti saying he had pigeons on the loose and they were proving a nuisance. The mayor instructed the village clerk, Everett Cooper, to notify Mr. Marti to either coop up the pigeons or dispose of them.

Howard Scheiblich was invited to appear before the board to answer the complaints of neighbors that his chickens were on the loose and scratching out newly planted gardens. He claimed the chicken yard gate had been opened by some children in his absence from home, allowing the chickens to get out. He was asked to padlock the gate and keep the chickens penned up.

The village board is asking all residents having chickens and pigeons to be considerate of their neighbors and to help in preventing the loss or destruction of newly planted victory gardens by keeping their poultry penned up.

The Pro and Con of Killing Foxes

Frankfort, Ill. May 8, 1944
Editor Mokena Bulletin:

I have read with interest a letter appearing in a recent issue of your paper over the name of H. B. Eberman. Said letter contains some true and some false statements.

Criticism of Editor Semmler for printing notices of anticipated fox hunts is unjust. Ye Editor doesn't make the news, he only publishes it.

The News-Bulletin has never "glorified" a fox hunt, neither have foxes ever been collectively clubbed to death in this community. If foxes were allowed to multiply undisturbed we should soon have no rabbits, squirrels, possums or game birds left on our farms.

The killing of predatory animals with heavy charges of shot is not inhuman. Trapping, clubbing or dogging these animals down does not involve cruel treatment.

This "Eberman" writer should realize that dinosaurs, buffalo, deer, bears, bob cats, wolves, etc. had to go with the advance of white settlers. Why need that writer pick on the lowly rabbit? All poor bunny can do for self preservation is to run like the dickens.

Is Mr. Eberman too lazy to build a rabbit fence around his garden?

To state that farmers are too lazy to fence their chicken yards against foxes is pure nonsense. The loss of chickens to foxes is of very little consequence, meaning of course, the four legged fox.

Life magazine prints and pictures a lot of deceptions, also a lot of rot. With no corroboration, I very much doubt the veracity of those purported realistic pictures of Ohio fox hunts, to which Mr. Eberman refers. Pictures tell more lies than words can do, only a few years ago a group of Chicago newspapermen, totting a large camera down a Mokena street during a milk strike against the Bowman Dairy plant offered more than fifty dollars for some pictures to be posed by farmers as the photographer saw fit.

It appeared that they would have a large body of dairymen arm themselves with guns or clubs and proceed to upset a wagon load of milk regardless of possible injuries to the driver.

They wanted a group of law abiding, peace loving dairy farmers to appear to the Chicago public as a bunch of highwaymen and hoodlums. Yes, pictures do lie.

Getting back to four legged foxes, I have examined the door yards of dens occupied by young foxes and have found many field mice, some grub eating moles, Scalops, full grown crows, a snake and many pheasant and other bird feathers. Foxes do eat grasshoppers too.

We should have a five year closed season on quail hunting. These valuable birds are now almost extinct in this Will County.

The quail is the only bird known to eat chicken bugs. In my opinion we should cease the payment of fox bounties in Will County. Some hunters are sportsmen, others just killers.

With the advent of white settlers in the wilderness the balance of animal life soon became upset so it is up to man to make certain readjustments now and then so that foxes and other predatory animals may not become too numerous.

Clarence M. Cleveland

Dear Editor:

In response to your request for the opinion of framers in this territory concerning fox hunts, will say:

We agree 100 percent with Mr. Eberman of Palos Park. In a recent Mokena hunt, our two dogs were killed by these, so-called-sportsmen. One dog was killed in the woods while the other, a small black pup was shot only a short distance behind our barn in an open pasture. Our neighbors agree with us that fox hunting should be eliminated in this section if the hunters can't tell the difference between dogs and foxes. Maybe the next generation would like to see what foxes are also in time to come.

Busby Praised For G. I. Bill of Rights

National officers and committee chairmen of the American Legion, including Commander Warren H. Atherton, Executive Director of the National Legislative Committee Francis M. Sullivan, Governor John Stelle, National Chairman and James Ringley, Illinois State chairman of the Special World War 2 American Legion Committee on Rehabilitation and Education, were enthusiastic in their expression of gratitude and praise of the exceptionally good work accomplished by Congressman Fred E. Busbey, R., 3d Ill., in guiding this legislation thru the World War Veterans Legislation Committee of the House.

After several weeks of hearings the Committee met in all day executive sessions for nearly three weeks, and wrote the best possible bill in behalf of veterans. The bill as reported from the Committee on Thursday, May 4, 1944, is proclaimed by many to be the most important legislation to come before Congress at this session.

In the opinion of those who originally sponsored the bill, many improvements have been made by the House Committee over the bill as passed in the Senate. The bill will be considered in the House during the week of May 6, and after passage will be sent to conference for adjustment of differences between the House and Senate bills.

In brief, the bill as written in the House Committee provides as follows:

Title 1. Provides hospitalization, and authority for representatives of veterans' organizations to be in hospitals and Army and Navy installations, to give advice and aid to men and women being released from service.

Title 2. Under this title a veteran whose education was interrupted by reason of entrance into service, and who served more than 90 days, will be given assistance in completing his education.

Title 3. Under this section, the Government will guarantee loans for the purchase or construction of homes, farms, or business properties. In general, this title assists the veterans to reestablish themselves in civilian life.

Title 4. Gives the veterans employment preference.

Title 5. Provides for unemployment compensation during the period of readjustment back to civilian life.

Copies of S. 1767, the "G. I. Bill of Rights" are available on request of Hon. Fred E. Busbey, Room 309, Old House Office Bldg., Washington, D. C.

TINLEY PREPARING TO ESTABLISH A RECREATION PROGRAM

The Tinley Park Recreation Commission has prepared two questionnaires in its first move to establish a recreation program for the young people of the community.

One questionnaire was given to all children of grade school age listing activities which might be engaged in. The children were asked to fill out these questionnaires according to the activities of their choice.

The second questionnaire was delivered to each home in the community asking that the citizens fill in the facilities which were available and whether or not they would be interested in helping supervise a group in an activity of their choice.

These latter questionnaires are to be returned either to Mr. W. F. Fierke at the Tinley Park school or to be left at Cavett Drug. It is hoped that many citizens will indicate their interest in the program of youth activities and will make facilities and services available to the young people of the community.

No Gas, No Rural Mail Delivery

When Edward Warning, rural mail carrier operating out of the Frankfort postoffice found his gas coupons getting low last week he applied to the Will County Ration Board for more coupons, but was advised that he had exceeded his quota and would have to wait a few days until the new quota became valid.

Monday morning after the rural mail had been packed ready to go out Mr. Warning did not make his rounds as he did not have enough gas.

About noon Christ Fink started on the route and made about half of it and finished up the next day with the regular mail.

PRETTY WEDDING SOLEMNIZED IN ST. PETER'S EVANG. CHURCH, FRANKFORT

A pretty wedding was solemnized Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at St. Peter's Evangelical church in Frankfort, when Miss Marietta Christianson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Christiansen, became the bride of Pfc. Glen Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Jacobs of Monee. The Rev. Erich Bizer, pastor of the church, officiated. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Bizer, organist, played a group of love songs, and accompanied Mrs. Leon Knipfle of Monee, who sang I Love You Truly.

The bride was escorted to the palm decked altar by her father. She was attractive in a gown of white embroidered marquisette, fashioned with gathered skirt and long train. The sleeves were long and fitted and the bodice which buttoned down the back with tiny buttons, had a sweetheart neckline. Her fingertip length veil was held in place with a pearl ornament. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Welmer Yando of Monee, sister of the groom, wore a pink taffeta gown with a blue blusher veil and matching hair ornament. Reversing the colors, Miss Viola Christiansen of Kalamazoo, Mich., maid of honor and sister of the bride, wore blue taffeta with a pink blusher and a pink hair ornament.

The dresses were similar with full skirts and short puffed sleeves, lace yokes with narrow black velvet ribbon ties. Both carried pink roses. The junior bridesmaid, Nancy Kay Holl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Holl of Joliet, was pretty in her long colonial frock of aqua taffeta with a lace ruffle at the hem. She also carried pink roses.

Everette Jacobs of Monee served his cousin as best man. Another attendant was Glen Christiansen, the bride's brother. Ushers were Franklin Christiansen and Welmer Yando. At the close of the ceremony, Mrs. Knipfle sang The Lord's Prayer by Schilling.

Mrs. Christiansen wore black crepe and Mrs. Jacobs a blue print. Both wore orchids.

A reception was held at the Christiansen home for about 40 relatives and friends. Pfc. Jacobs will soon return to his station at Indiantown Gap, Pa. and Mrs. Jacobs will keep her position at the Balchowsky Store.

On Friday evening Mrs. Franklin Christiansen and Mrs. Lester Christiansen entertained about 35 guests at a miscellaneous shower honoring Mrs. Jacobs. Bunco was played at seven tables with duplicate prizes for the bride. Decorations were in pink and blue with tiny candles for favors. A two course luncheon was served at quartette tables. Guests were from Joliet, New Lenox, Monee and Frankfort.

FRANKFORT FARMERS KILL SEVEN RED FOXES

For quite some time Herbert Schmaedeke, Fred ZumMallen, Hilbert Meyers and Edwin Schmaedeke and other farmers around Frankfort claimed they have noticed many depredations committed by foxes and report that last Sunday afternoon they trailed 7 red foxes to their den on land which Hilbert Meyer works on the Gilchrist Road near Frankfort. The men armed with shot guns waited for the foxes to make their appearance and killed all seven of them. Exploring the dens they found the remains of pheasants, rabbits, lot of chicken feathers and other evidence of the well meals the foxes had been enjoying at the farmers expense.

These farmers feel that foxes are detrimental to farm property and therefore should be exterminated.

Village Appealed To For Help In Financing Cost

Fourteen property owners in the northwest side of Mokena have been experiencing flooded basements and yards as the result of broken and clogged drain tiles. These property owners called a mass meeting last week and discussed the matter of drainage. Estimates were received on the cost of 1500 feet of 8 inch drain tile but the cost of laying them had not been ascertained at the time.

As considerable water from the village park runs into this territory the village has been asked to do something to alleviate this condition. Chas. Rose and Geo. Bisgrove, representing the property owners appeared before the Mokena village board at their meeting Tues. evening and outlined their plans. Mayor Harry F. Mall told the committee to secure figures on the total cost of the tile and labor of laying same and to pro rate the share of the cost to be paid by the village.

Among the properties which have had flood water problems are the St. Mary church hall, the parsonage of the St. John Evangelical church Chas. Rose, Geo. Bisgrove, Rev. Manly Mumford and others.

Double-Barreled Smash at 'Fortress' Europe

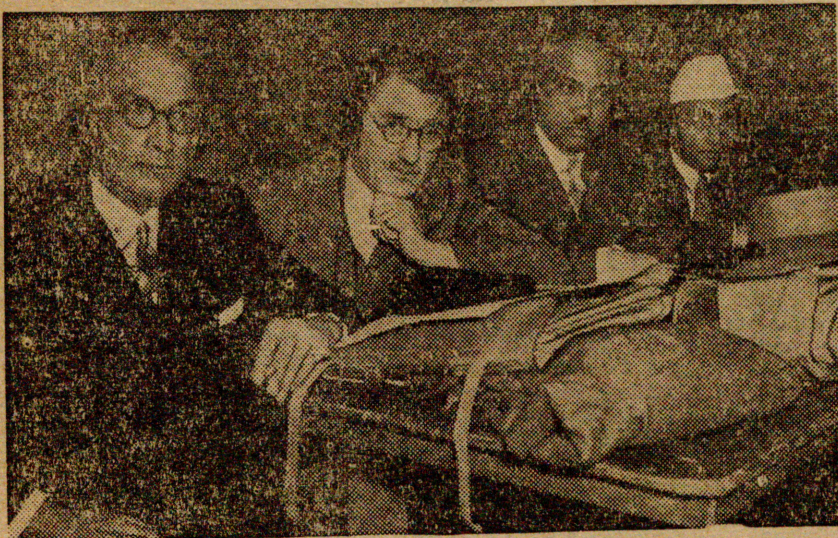

Here is shown the boundary referred to as Hitler's "Inner Fortress," which soon may be cracking in several places. Even as the Red army pauses in preparation for a spring drive, the Russians are at the very wall of the fortress, and are expected to hit at vital Lwow, rail gate to Warsaw and Berlin. The Allies must crack the heavily fortified coast line and break through many divisions of Germany's outstanding troops. Meanwhile, pre-invasion pounds from the air continue to knock out Nazi air strength, cripple rail lines and arms factories.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By Bob McShane
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Although predictions as to the final outcome of the American league race should be made on a day-to-day basis, this department strings along with the many observers who look for the New York Yankees to win the 1944 pennant.

The American league has a tough, interesting race ahead of it. There are no clubs as outstanding as the Cardinals in the National. And that makes the race all the more interesting. We look for New York to nose out Washington and Chicago. We might as well get it over with and list them in the order they might possibly finish:

New York	St. Louis
Washington	Detroit
Chicago	Boston
Cleveland	Philadelphia

Manager Joe McCarthy's Yankees obviously do not have as good a ball club as the 1943 model. But they still are good enough to top the circuit if the pitching staff isn't torn asunder by the draft. They need Spud Chandler and Tiny Bonham on the mound. The opening game against the Red Sox was some slight evidence that the clutch punch is still there, even though it doesn't have the same old force.

Washington's Outlook

Washington, too, has a great pitching staff, judged by current standards. The club has a weak-hitting infield, a bad gap at third base, dependable catching and a powerful outfield. The Senators also have a 13-night home stand, which should aid and abet such knuckleballers like Emil Leonard, John Niggeling, Mickey Heafner and Roger Wolff. The outfield includes George Case, Stan Spence and Robert Ortiz.

It wasn't long ago that Lou Boudreau, manager of the Indians, picked the White Sox as the team to beat. So far they haven't impressed many observers, but they certainly will be battling with more experienced help than many another club possesses. Selection of the White Sox for third place is predicated to quite an extent on the large number of 4-Fs on the payroll, together with the fact that other clubs are likely to suffer more losses to the armed forces.

The Cleveland situation is baffling—even to the Indians. An infield with Boudreau, Ken Keltner, Mickey Rocco and Russ Peters would be one of the best in the league. But Keltner, Boudreau and Peters are subject to the draft—as are many of the remaining top-notchers. The club is well supplied with bush leaguers, but most of them wouldn't get far in big league circles during normal times.

4-F Infield

Luke Sewell, manager of the St. Louis Browns, is blessed with a 4-F infield—Vern Stephens at short, Don Gutteridge at second, George McQuinn at first and Ellis Clary at third. The Browns are inexperienced, weak in the outfield and pitching departments, but have a fair catching department. They have lost at least 19 men to the military services.

The Tigers may be a strong early-season team, but they are marked for the second division. Sparked by Paul Trout, a 20-game winner last year, Detroit has a good pitching staff. But the club is weak in too many departments to be a serious threat.

Boston and Philadelphia should fight it out for last place. The Athletics looked good at the start, but that is customary in Philadelphia. Boston's case appears to be without hope. The Red Sox have been rocked by losses of key players.

At this early date New York, Washington and Chicago are the class of the junior league. In normal times it would work out this way. But these are far from normal times.

More recent draft regulations hold a few rays of hope for managers. If draft quotas are filled with men under 26, or even 28, the game won't suffer too much from manpower losses.

THE glamour and fame of Babe Ruth's career began in 1914 when he reported to the Boston Red Sox. The Babe Ruth that almost everyone knows stepped out beneath the great white spotlight at that 30-year-old date.

But how many know the story of the Babe Ruth between the ages of 12 and 19 when he was a kid at the St. Mary's Industrial school in Baltimore? We happened to run across Brother Gilbert who knew the Babe in those early and far away days.

"I was the baseball coach at Mt. St. Josephs, around 1911," Brother Gilbert told me, "when I first ran into the Babe. He was then 16 years old, a tall, stringy kid, well built, but in no sense bulky."

"When I first saw the Babe play he was a left-handed catcher. He wore his catcher's mitt on the left hand and I was amazed at the swiftness and the deftness he employed in tossing aside his big mitt and throwing to second with his left hand. It was easy to see that the Babe was no catcher—but it was just as easy to see that he was a natural ball-player who had the winning spirit. The Babe just thought he had to win. Even as a young kid he could never understand defeat."

"I watched him from that time on. In one of the first important games I ever saw Ruth play he hit three home runs. He was a fine hitter when he was only 12. There used to be three or four teams playing at St. Mary's and everyone wanted to see the young Babe swing a bat."

The Earlier Years

"The time came," Brother Gilbert said, "when the Babe was ready to get his chance. So I recommended him to my close friend, Jack Dunn, Baltimore's famous manager. In the early training season Jack used the Babe at short, where he did all right. But Dunn knew that a left-handed shortstop just didn't belong, so he moved Ruth into the pitching spot. In his first real professional test he shut out the 1914 Athletics, American league pennant winners, 6 to 0."

"He was then 19 years old, weighing around 185 pounds. Later he beat the 1914 Boston Braves 2 to 1 and as you remember the Braves whipped the Athletics four straight. The two pennant winners that season got just one run off the Babe in 18 innings. And he was then just a kid. The Babe's curve ball was just fair, but he had everything else, including a cool head and a stout heart. Plus fine speed and control."

"There was another time that spring where the Babe started a double header. He was knocked out in the first inning of the first game and then came back to win a shut-out in the second."

Brother Gilbert was a close friend of Jack Dunn's and Connie Mack's. I asked him why it was that Connie didn't get the Babe.

"This is an odd story," Brother Gilbert said.

"Early in 1914, the year that Babe started with Baltimore, he was offered to Mr. Mack for $10,000."

"But it so happened at that time that Connie had too many good ballplayers. His Athletics had won the pennant in 1910, 1911 and 1913. They won again in 1914. They had been so good that they were beginning to draw smaller and smaller crowds. Early in 1914 when Connie could have bought Babe, he had such pitchers as Chief Bender, Eddie Plank, Bullet Joe Bush and I think Jack Coombs. He had a likely looking left-hander coming along by the name of Herb Pennock. He had one of his greatest ball clubs. 'I know this boy Ruth is a great ballplayer,' Connie told me. 'But I already have too many great players in my club. Why should I add another?'"

"I remember one game at St. Mary's when the Babe was only 17 years old. There was another ball game going on at another spot in the same field. When Ruth came to bat the other fellows stopped their game."

"We'd better look out," someone said, 'or that guy will kill somebody.' Ruth hit a low line triple that just cleared their heads."

"Ruth was a great kid," Brother Gilbert said. "He was a kid who loved kids then and has loved kids all his life. We'd get him a few jobs, but he'd never hold them long. He only wanted to play baseball—to catch, to pitch, to play the infield and the outfield—to knock the ball over some fence."

About the National League

A few nights ago I had the privilege of facing a group of wounded soldiers. They wanted to know who I thought would win the National league pennant.

Here is my opinion:

The Cardinals have a good prewar team. Billy Southworth has a big jump on his league. The Cardinals may run away with the pennant before mid-July. Many managers rate the Reds, Pirates, Dodgers, Giants and Cubs in a compact bunch, giving the Phillies and Braves a chance.

Speedy Construction in Canal Zone—Poles Sprout

Today's speed of engineering and construction produced a laugh for natives of the island of Martinique, located on the approach to the Panama canal, French West Indies.

Telephone poles, placed along a new mountain highway, were cut and set so rapidly that they took root in the fertile soil and began sprouting branches all the way up the "trunk."

Life of Republics

Since 1500 B. C., there have been 55 republics, 21 of which had disappeared before the outbreak of the present war. Of these, the republic of Venice lasted 1,196 years; Genoa, 802 years; and Carthage, 704 years. The three oldest republics today are San Marino, 1,059 years; Switzerland, 653 years; and the United States, 168 years.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking--its risk of exposure and infection--throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling--feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

The Tinley Neo Triangle's Friday nite entertainment is meeting with huge success. More members are joining each week but there are still many more who have not yet joined. Besides dancing, we are having ping pong. This week begins a big tournament with registration early this evening. Singles and doubles will be played. A slight fee will be charged with prizes for the champions. Come early tonight and be among the first to register to play.

At recent dances much enthusiasm has been shown among competitors at ping pong. For May 21 we have planned a big picnic commencing with a hike and concluding with a hay ride. This is to be a box social affair with the girls packing the lunches which will be auctioned to the highest bidding boys. The boy buying the lunch will then eat with the girl who packed that lunch. Pop will be served free of charge to those participating in the outing. Only registered members will be permitted to attend.

So for now don't forget the dance and ping pong tonight at 8:00 pm. Instruction for those wishing to learn to dance will begin at 7:30. See you tonight at the Tinley Park School gym.

The following letter has been received from Mrs. W. Combs of Los Angeles, Cal.

May 1, 1944

Dear Semmlers:

I've had a most interesting and enjoyable time. If I had settled up my business before leaving I would not return now for several good reasons.

It was my pleasure to be a guest of the Harry Bettenhausen's who live in Beverly Hills and have a real California home in one of the best locations, its lovely. Harry and Esther were not lacking in courtesy, the best was none too good for me, with a delightful drive thru beautiful country, past movie stars homes and the show places winding up with a Turkey dinner. Their young daughter Helen is married and has a most attractive home and husband. They inquired about you folks with real friendly interest and hoped you would drive out to see them. The Jim Keleher's also have a beautiful home and I was their guest for weekends. Their flowers, fruits and vegetables are something to see. Two tall palm trees 50 ft. high guard their entrance. The front of the house and side is all glass. They have apricot, lemon, avocado and fig trees and a "patio" swings, fancy chairs and all that goes with it. They love California. As soon as I settle my affairs I shall return here to make it my future home.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Wallace Combs

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Glad you dropped in, Judge. I was just trying to explain to Mary what you told us down at lodge last night...about all the grain used to distill war-alcohol not really being used up. She didn't realize it, either."

"It's true, Mary. Wherever the government has permitted distillers to purchase the equipment necessary to reprocess the used grain, at least 50% of the feed value (25% by weight) of the whole grain is being recovered and returned to farms in the form of..."

stock feed. Only the starch is removed during distilling...the part recovered is a highly-prized concentrate containing valuable proteins, fats and carbohydrates. The distilling industry really has taken a leading part in the development of new cattle and poultry feed products from reprocessed grain...products rich in vitamins B₁ and B₂...so essential to satisfactory growth and production. And the recovery of grain will apply also to the making of whiskey when production is resumed."

"Bake" a Cake on Top of the Stove

The flexible, easily controlled heat of gas ranges makes interesting new surface recipes practical and no longer limits top-of-the-stove cookery to frying and boiling. These advantages are not limited to city housewives, since convenient "bottled" or "tank" gas is the ready source of fuel for thousands of suburban and farm homes outside the scope of public gas utilities.

You can save fuel by "baking" your upside-down cake on top of the stove. Here's one recipe for this convenient dessert:

3 tblsp. butter
¾ cup brown sugar
2 apples

Melt butter in skillet, add the brown sugar and stir well. Slice apples and arrange in mixture in bottom of skillet. Prepare batter and pour into skillet, being careful not to disarrange fruit. Place lid on skillet and cook over low flame for 45 minutes or until done. Make batter as follows:

6 tblsp. butter
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs
¼ cup milk
3 teasp. baking powder
1 teasp. vanilla
1½ cups sifted cake flour

Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Sift flour and baking powder together and add alternately with milk and vanilla.

U. S. Amtorg Planned By Wallace BEW

La Varre Charges Highly-placed Govt. Employees Seek Totalitarianism Here

Washington, D. C. — Vice-President Henry Wallace's Board of Economic Warfare tried to establish a government monopoly over exports and imports similar to Soviet Russia's Amtorg as a means of bringing totalitarianism to the United States through the back door of our foreign commerce, William La Varre, Former Chief American Republics Office, U. S. Department of Commerce, charged today.

La Varre, who resigned his post so that he could inform the people of the peril which he believes the United States faces unless Americans hear the facts, made the charges in an article he wrote for the May issue of Cosmopolitan magazine entitled "Mr. Cramer And Our Foreign Commerce."

Explaining that "Mr. Cramer" is a real person, but a fictitious name, La Varre charges that "Cramer" tried to obtain from him highly confidential files of the Office of Naval Intelligence and G-2 (Army Intelligence) and of the State Department having to do with labor conditions in, and our imports from and exports to other countries.

"Cramer's" purpose in obtaining this highly confidential information was to organize the import and export business of Latin-American countries on Amtorg lines under pressure from the United States," and then it will be easy to set up our own import-export government corporations," La Varre charged.

"Mr. Cramer" of Washington and his playmates in many Washington agencies believe in totalitarianism as practised in Russia," La Varre declared. "Their goal is to bring it to America through the back door of our foreign commerce."

GOVERNMENT CORN FREEZE DOES NOT APPLY TO COOK COUNTY

"Numerous persons have inquired if the recent corn freeze from which the government is taking corn applies to Cook County," states Farm Adviser C. A. Hughes. "The freeze is only in the commercial corn area and does not apply to Cook County. Farmers and others are free to buy, sell and handle corn as formerly."

FIND VFW SIGN NEAR JAP BARGE

That enthusiastic members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. really get around and never forget to boost their organization is evidenced by the following letter from somewhere in the South Pacific war theatre which an officer recently wrote to National Headquarters of the V. F. W. at Kansas City, Missouri:

"I intended to write you some time ago but, as you know, one is prone to postpone all efforts except those pertaining directly to his work. However, today, I was down on the beach and there I saw a little weather beaten sign that finally got me going. Very appropriately, the sign was nailed on a tree about ten yards from the mangled remains of a Jap barge! It read: 'Join the V. F. W. Today!'"

Thoughts From Over There

I'm sitting here and thinking of the things I left behind. And I'd hate to put on paper what is running through my mind.

We've dug a million ditches and cleared ten miles of ground and a meaner place this side of hell is waiting to be found. But there is one consolation, gather closely while I tell when we die we'll go to heaven for we've done our hitch in hell.

We've built a hundred kitchens for the cooks to stew our beans, we've stood a million guard mounts and cleaned the camps latrine, we've washed a million messkits and opened a million cans. The number of parades we've stood is very hard to tell. We won't have to parade in heaven for we've done our hitch in hell.

We've killed a million flies and bugs that troubled us night and day. And shook a million centipedes out of our dirty blankets. We've marched a million miles and made a million camps. And have pulled a million cactus from the seats of khaki pants. But when our work on earth is done our friends behind will tell, when they died they went to heaven for they did their hitch in hell.

When finally taps is sounded and we'll do our last parade up those shining Golden Stairs, the angels all will welcome us and harps will start to play. We will draw a million canned books and spend them in a day.

Even though you have been able to attend the regular meetings, your cooperation will be appreciated. The dues are 25c a month.

A check for $31.17 was turned over to our organization by Mayor Harry Mall. It was the proceeds of the recent scrap drive. We are grateful to all who helped make the drive a success. We also wish to thank Richard Needham for being so faithful in taking the cookies to the USO in Joliet for the past year. Good weather or bad, the cookies were delivered and we are sure it wasn't always a pleasant task.

Letters from our boys:

Somewhere in England

Dear Ladies:

I received your Easter greetings and thanks very much. It arrived before Easter Sunday.
Haven't seen Kurt Hellmuth or Fred Clark for three months or so. Have seen different members of their outfits and they are still around and OK. Received my rations today but couldn't get any razor blades, and last week got one.

Good thing I have some spare ones. Wrote one letter to you but had to tear it up as I said something I wasn't supposed to.

One of my buddies, who is from Joliet, is pressing his clothes and is just about done. I'm next on the iron so guess I'll close. In closing I again wish to thank you for the Easter card. Till later then, Cherrio

To the Editor:
I have been longer than I should have been writing these few lines. First of all I want you to know that the News Bulletin has been very much appreciated. I been receiving them since the past month and a half but they were an awful long time about catching up to me. Formerly working for Joe Scott of Frankfort. I like to know what goes on there and the neighboring towns and the Bulletin covers them all.

I'm saying hello to all the friends of Mokena and Frankfort and wishing them good luck too.

If anyone would like to know something about the old country just write to Sgt. Henry R. McCullar, APO 783, care postmaster New York, and I will do my best to give a description.

Tinley Service Man's Letter

April 12, 1944

Dear Folks:
I received the Easter package on the same day the Times arrived, a complete day.

Your thoughtfulness is very much appreciated. I wish to thank you for remembering me. If it means as much to the rest of the boys in service to hear from the folks back home as it does to me, your efforts are justly rewarded.

Please say hello to all my friends and let this serve as a hello to my buddies in service. Thank you again for the package and the paper keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
Ed Ryan

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS

April 1, 1944
What Day?

Dear Folks:

Today was without a doubt one of the best days I've had since I've been in India and places. Your package arrived, it was Xmas in April, for me and boy was that swell. I've been up in the hills for almost six months now and when the package came I couldn't believe my eyes, everything was intact and in very good shape. I can't thank you enough for everything you folks have done. Three years now since leaving for the army and still the people in Tinley Park remember, you just can't realize how it makes me feel, so all I'll say is thanks for everything also please send the Easter box.

I was very sorry to hear about Lulu. She was sure OK and a real friend. My sympathy to the folks who were dear to her.

If I could I would tell you what I was doing but you realize its impossible unless you have read about it in the papers. Hope to see you all in the near future. Good luck to all of you but don't worry every thing is well under control.

Sincerely yours,
John Gotham

Mar. 18, 1944

Dear Friends:

Received the cigarettes you sent and they were much appreciated, so I just want to send a word of thanks as cigarettes always come in so handy. Where I'm now it is quite sandy. The weather here has been quite nice. I really can say I haven't seen much winter, although there is some snow on the mountains.

I will have to cut this letter short as there isn't much I can talk about so will close for now and say hello to you all and thanks again for the cigarettes. Hoping to be with you all in the near future.

As ever,
Dave Zeilstra.

Somewhere in England.
March 18, 1944

Dear members of the Citizens Service Comm.

I want to thank you for the very nice letter you write me and also for the opportunity to ask you for that very nice Easter box you described so eloquently. Since as you say we have to abide by the postal regulations I now ask you for it.

You asked if I receive the Tinley paper, I'd say it takes a month or a little longer to reach me. I want to thank you also for the cigarettes I receive from time to time and as I told Mrs. Rogers, its things like that makes us want to end this war even sooner than it looks like it will end. I am sure that you and the committee will be able to carry on just as well even tho Mrs. Rogers isn't with you anymore. I like to imagine she has just taken a journey to work on another Com., that needs her guiding hand.

I have about run down now so I'll say bye for now and God bless you and the Committee and all other such organizations. I'm sure that in the long run you people will be repaid a thousand fold.

A new (but very earnest) Tinley Parker,
Sgt. Frank Mueller

March 19, 1944

Dear Friends:

Just a few lines to let you know I am in England and everything is going along fine.

The English people are very friendly and hospitable. The customs are naturally a little different than our own, but there are many things to remind us of America. I haven't received the Tinley Park Times since we've been here but they should be coming soon.

I hope you are all well, and will be looking forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,
Pvt. James Zimmerman
P.S. Please send me the Easter box.

Mar. 31, 1944

Dear Friends:

Seems I've fallen far behind in writing so I guess I'd better make some attempt at catching up.

I've been at my new station for a few days over a month now and am pretty well straightened out although I'm still having a tough time with a new uniform. I mentioned straightening out and that can surely be taken literally. My rank is that of a plebe and every thing we do requires a stiff and braced position, this includes eating and walking.

We're also compelled to sit on only three inches of our bench at chow as well as sitting in a stiff position. We take quite a bit of abuse from the seniors but its quite a bit of fun if you take it the right way.

I have about 20 months at most before I graduate from here. The subjects are pretty rugged and I'm having all the trouble I want with them.

Well I have to attend drill in a few minutes so I'll close now.
Bill Dunn

April 15, 1944

Dear Friends:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and sincerely hope you are the same.

I received your package the other day, and sure was glad. I'd like to thank you for it as it really hit the spot.

The weather around here sure is swell. Its a little warm but I don't mind it one bit. I'm still holding the same job in the Engineering office and like it swell. The last two days I volunteered for detail, it was shoveling sand and raking the area. We finished a little early this afternoon so we got the remainder of the afternoon off. We also get a half day off in the near future as we worked until 8 o'clock last night.

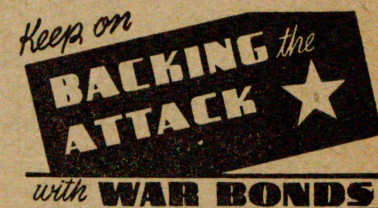

Well how is everybody in Tinley Park. Its getting kind of late so I'd better close for this time, hoping to hear from you all soon.
Albert Manzke

Tinley Park Service Comm.

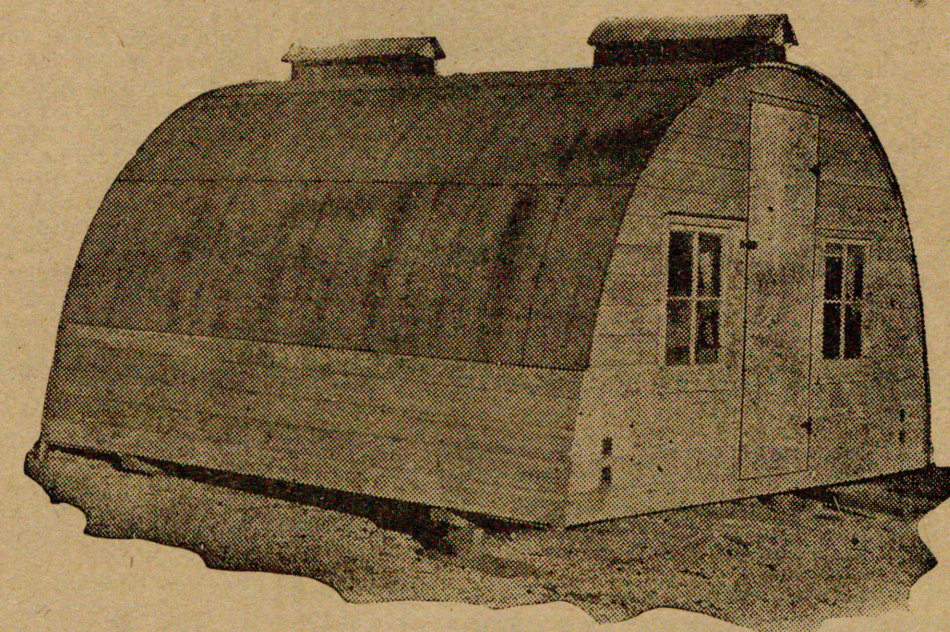

Please excuse my tardiness in not thanking you for the swell Easter box you sent me. The boys and I really enjoyed it as it came at that point of the afternoon when we were starting to get hungry. I would also like to thank you for sending the Tinley Park paper. Even tho I get home quite often I have to read the paper to get most of the news.

There isn't much I can tell you about the station to make an interesting letter like some of the other boys do, as it is close to home and you probably know about as much as I do about it.

I'll close by again saying Thanks a lot for the box and the papers.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed fleeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other Fortresses, was demolished before it could take off. After escaping to Australia, what is left of the squadron flies to Java where they go out on many missions over the Philippines. Nine P-40 fighter planes arrive from Australia a few days before a Jap bomber force is reported over Java. Three waves of Japs come over, and Zeros get Major Straubel, squadron commander. The Forts spot a Jap carrier in the Java sea and send it away limping. Then more Forts arrive.

CHAPTER XIV

"The Japs by now were stirred up. They came over—obviously off a carrier hidden somewhere near—and strafed hell out of Timor airdrome. Luckily there was nothing on the field just then.

"Now we began to see that it would be only a matter of time until the Japs took that steppingstone field at Timor, which connected us to Australia, and it would all be over—for no more fighters could get through to us under their own power. Jap bombers had already hit Surabaya. If we got no more fighters, how long before they smashed our Forts at Malang? The skies were darkening fast.

"But about this time we did a curious job for the Dutch. I was in their Navy headquarters on business when Kommander van der Straaten came running up. 'You got to help me!' he said. 'Our bravest sub is in trouble—she can't dive.' Then he explained that she was more than three hundred miles out in the Java Sea, moving slowly toward home base, but that Zeros were circling overhead, and had probably summoned Jap bombers to polish her off. Two Dutch PBV's had been guarding her, but those big flying boats are clumsy as ducks, and the Zeros had already shot one down.

"What they had to have, Van der Straaten explained, was fighters to cover the submarine. But the little Dutch Curtiss fighters didn't have the range to get out and back.

"I got Bud Sprague on the phone, told him I was coming out—urgent. Then I wrote down on a piece of paper what Van der Straaten told me of their submarine's course, speed, and hourly position.

"Bud laid it out on a chart and figured fast. It was a long distance. Even with belly tanks, his fighters could barely get out there and spend fifteen minutes patrolling the submarine when they'd have to start back.

"But he figured he had enough planes to keep two of them over her all the time—in fifteen-minute relays—until they'd escorted her back to a point where the little Dutch Curtiss fighters would have the range to take over.

"Bud led the first pair out himself (he's no swivel-chair officer), and the Dutch, in addition to being tearfully grateful, woke up to the fact that maybe liaison was a good idea. Van der Straaten noticed I'd had trouble getting a car getting out to the field—I'd been spending most of my salary on taxis getting everybody's business done—and the next morning a Dutch staff car with a sergeant at the wheel reported to the door of the hotel. They assigned it to me for the duration of the war.

"But at this point another submarine showed up with a hard-luck story—she was one of ours which had sneaked through the Jap blockade from Corregidor, with a load of fourteen passengers—most of them pilots I knew, who had lost their planes and been left when we had to pull out of the Philippines.

"They came roaring into the hotel late. They were sick of fiddling around on Bataan with rifles, and now were itching to get into the air again. In addition to which, they'd been cooped up for days under water in that stinking little tin cigar box. You can imagine how a pilot would take that. Here they were at last, free in a big luxurious hotel, with lights and girls. They nearly pulled it to pieces, and danced with all the girls in the place who would take a chance with them on the floor. But in between they had plenty of news.

"I told them they had me in liaison work just now, and they said, hell, if I had talents like that, the place for me was on Corregidor. Because the Army had the Navy stuffed into one end of a tunnel while they were stuffed into the other, and relations were so strained that the staffs would only communicate by courier. And now how about a shot of this Daiquiri rum they'd heard so much talk about?

"I finally got them quieted down and on the bus for Malang. They were crazy to get back up in the air after all those weeks.

"And then, just as I was about to go to bed, a call from Margo came through.

"Some friends wanted me to go to Florida with them," said Margo. "The girl's husband had a war job there. I couldn't decide. But Frank said it looked as though he wasn't going to get any vacation, so I should take a good long one to do for both of us. I must go, and it would be our vacation. I could tell he was very tired, and that worried undertone was in his voice. I had been glad when he told me he would probably be on the ground for a while, so I couldn't understand it. Nobody in the States doubted yet that Java would hold. I told him I'd call him as soon as I reached Florida. And then he said a curious thing.

"Darling," he said, "I'd better warn you that these calls may not last much longer."

"I didn't ask why, because I knew it must be something the censor would not let him tell me. So because the time was up, I just said good night. Without ever talking it over, we'd always made it our rule never to say goodbye. That was too frightening. Always it was good night."

"I was worried, Margo," said Frank, "because I'd just got word from our Navy's PBV's on patrol that a new Jap invasion fleet was coming down Macassar Strait, apparently headed for Balikpapan on Borneo. It has a fair harbor and is the last base they would need before they took over Java. And I couldn't see how we were going to stop them.

"But next day Colonel Eubank gathered his Forts together and they took off at 3:30 in the morning, so that they would be out over Macassar Strait in time to make their bomb run just at dawn.

"They had to come down below the overcast to see the target, which was two converging lines of Jap ships, heavily escorted—one coming in from the northeast and one from

I was working the top turret gun and could see what was happening on the third Fort.

Tarakan. Well, we hit it. And of course we do some damage. But it's a big force—the Navy doesn't dare go in. We have only a handful of Forts, so the Japs keep coming.

"But we're desperate, and so are the Dutch. Their entire bomber force now consisted of eight old B-10's (a 1934 model Martin twin-engine bomber), which were based at Balikpapan. These boys knew if the Japs were ever to be stopped, it had to be now, to give our reinforcements time to get in—if we were going to get any. So that afternoon they made their last desperate stab—damaging that Jap fleet of course, but not stopping it. And just as these Dutch bombers were coming in to land on Balikpapan Field, they were hit by carrier-based Zeros and every plane destroyed. Now the Dutch had nothing, and everything depended on our Forts.

"So the next day they put out from Malang to strike at the Japs in Macassar, and if possible sink a carrier. But what happened on that mission should not be my story. For I wasn't there. Two of our Sky Queens died that day in battle and I didn't see it. It doesn't happen often. Plenty of them had come home crippled. Others were beached, like Shorty Whelless' plane. Many others have cracked up when fog shrouded the field. But we'd lost only five by enemy action, and rarely have the Japs seen one fall. Colin crashed through the overcast near Clark Field, so they didn't see him—they saw Adams, but not Major Robinson. Seldom do our own boys ever see the old Queens go down in battle. So you tell it," said Frank, and here he looked at Sergeant Boone, the gunner.

"I saw it," said the Gunner, "and I can tell you how they die."

"It began like this. Nine of us had taken off from Malang to Macassar Strait to look for carriers. We had only started, we were about sixty miles off the coast, slowly climbing—had reached 7,000 feet—when we noticed some fighters in a tight formation. We assumed that they were P-40's, but we weren't taking any chances, because there seemed to be quite a gang of them—maybe some reinforcements had arrived which we hadn't heard of. So we watched as they came closer. Only when we saw the white points of our Army Air Force star with the red disk in the middle were we relieved. It hadn't occurred to us that you can take the red sun of Japan and with a few strokes of a paintbrush make five white star points around it.

(Shortly after this incident, the army air force emblem was changed, and the red central disk removed.)

"We didn't dream of this, but still we watched what we were so sure were P-40's. They were flying along with us, about three thousand yards away, apparently paying no attention. We didn't suspect they were Japs, mapping out their attack.

"There was nothing about this maneuver which surprised us, for the Japs so far had always attacked us from the rear. Then they wheeled in for their nose-on attack, and too late we saw those Army Air Force stars on their fuselages had been crudely forged.

"They concentrated on our first three planes, and remember now that this first attack, which caught us completely off guard and far below our regular altitude, happened in only a few seconds. One Fortress they hit only in the motor. The next Fortress, they put an incendiary through the bomb-bay gas tank they must have known through subversive activities in Java that we didn't have leakproof ones yet in that model. This set off the oxygen system, and the whole Fortress flared in front of our eyes in a puff of flame and smoke. Out of this we could see two or three parachutes floating down. Maybe the men dangling from them were alive. More probably they had never pulled the rip cords themselves, but the explosion opened the chutes.

"I was working the top turret gun, and from here I could see exactly what was happening on the third Fortress—Captain Duke Duphrane's ship—which was just on our left, and very close. I saw it, and so did Sergeant Jim Worley, the bombardier, who was working the little .30-caliber nose gun, and had brought down three Zeros. We all saw some of it, but Worley and I saw most.

"First, we saw Duphrane's plane shudder as the Jap tracers crashed into its cockpit and into its bomb bay. But she didn't go down yet. For a while she continued on with her chin up, like those pictures you see of Marie Antoinette or Mary Queen of Scots walking proudly toward the scaffold. And she didn't waver or flinch, even when we could see that dull-red flames from the burst gasoline tanks of that bomb bay were sprouting out of her, from the cockpit clear back to the tail.

"We surged just a little ahead of her nose, and from here we could see Duke Duphrane and his co-pilot both slumped over dead, their heads leaning against the shattered pane of the cockpit window. So it wasn't any man who was keeping her chin up. It was the Old Queen herself who wanted to die this way.

"We dropped back and came in a little closer—you had an awful feeling you wanted to help, and you couldn't—and we saw Sergeant Keightley, her radioman and right-waist gunner, climb through his escape hatch and bail out, and his chute open. And then her left-waist gunner, doing the same on the other side. We saw her tail gunner bail out and his chute open—they found him four or five days later on an island.

"She was enveloped in red flames now from nose to tail, and through her windows we could see flames shimmer inside her cabin, and as her plates melted she began to sink in a steepening curve, and along the wake of that curve we were to count seven parachutes, like seven swirling dandelion seeds.

"But as yet she hadn't gone down much, and our own pilot, Captain Strother—a brave, skillful pilot (who was presently to die—and every man of his crew feels he gave his life to save ours)—was keeping abreast of her, so that with our guns we could keep the Japs away in her last moments, and give her men a chance to jump.

"The last to leave her was Sergeant Leonard Coleman, her turret gunner—we could see him working his .50's, but now he left his turret. We saw him go by the side window, and he was struggling to put on his parachute—which he hadn't worn in that cramped top turret, for it would have interfered with his sighting and shooting—struggling to get his arms through it like a jacket among those licking flames. We saw him go back to the rear escape hatch, saw him drop through it with his clothes afire, saw him jerk the cord—he must have done it immediately, because by the time he had cleared the flaming tail by twenty feet, we saw his chute crack tight-open. But then, almost instantly, we saw that parachute begin to billow loosely like a silk scarf in the wind, because—Oh, God!—we saw something else. We saw the poor guy had had to jump without having time to buckle the belt strap of his parachute—the price he paid for staying in his turret for a few last shots at Zeros, protecting the others while they jumped. Maybe he figured he could hold the ends of the belt together with his hands. Maybe his hands were so burned he couldn't work the clasp.

PAUL IN THESSALONICA

LESSON TEXT: Acts 17:1-4; 1 Thessalonians 2:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT: Rejoice always; pray without ceasing; in everything give thanks.—1 Thessalonians 5:16-18.

Strong, active, missionary-minded churches do not just "happen." They are the result of the preaching of a true and powerful message by a faithful and sacrificial messenger. Other factors enter in, but these are the fundamentals.

Paul's ministry at Thessalonica, which is described in Acts 17 and explained in 1 Thessalonians 2, reveals what should be preached and what kind of a preacher is needed. Perhaps some dead or unsuccessful church may learn the secret today and come to new life for Christ.

1. The Message—Christ the Saviour (Acts 17:1-4).

Paul had already met the varying lot of both persecution and acceptance, and had now come to Thessalonica, a large and important city in Macedonia, where he had a lengthy ministry and established a strong church.

What was the message which so signally succeeded in this great strategic center? Well, it was not (as some modern preachers in large cities would seem to think) a series of social, political, or literary discourses. Paul preached Christ. He reasoned with them and presented the Saviour (v. 3) as One who was—

1. Dead for our sin. These people were like us in that they needed a solution for their sin problem. There were doubtless other questions which Paul might have discussed, but he wisely went to the root of their difficulty and showed them "that Christ must needs have suffered."

Without the death of Christ there is no salvation for any man. Only through the shedding of blood can there be remission of sin (Heb. 9:22). Paul had no part in the folly of a "bloodless gospel"—as though there were any such gospel.

2. Raised for our justification. It was not enough that Jesus died, marvelous as that is in our sight. For many a man has died for his convictions, but none has risen from the dead. Christ could not be held of the grave. He arose the victorious Redeemer.

3. Declared to be the Christ. He is more than a man, more than a great leader and an earnest teacher. He is God's anointed One, Himself divine—and our Lord.

Thus Paul presented to the Jews their Messiah, "the Man of Sorrows" (Isa. 53), whose resurrection declared Him to be the Son of God with power (Rom. 1:4), their Redeemer and Lord. Blessed results followed such preaching (v. 4).

II. The Messenger—Approved of God (1 Thess. 2:1-12).

Sometimes a man with a true message largely nullifies its value by the manner in which he presents it, or by his manner of life in the community.

1. He was faithful (vv. 1-6). One of the great temptations facing the one who is a preacher or teacher of God's Word is to let his fear of men cause him to adjust his message, to use a bit of flattery, to please men.

Paul was "bold in our God" (v. 2), not trying to deceive or mislead anyone (v. 3), seeking only God's approval (v. 4), not trying to make money for himself or gain standing with men by smooth words (v. 5), and not claiming a high position or authority over men (v. 6).

2. He was affectionate (vv. 7-9). How often those who are faithful and bold in preaching the truth ruin the effect of their work by being harsh and unkind. Here is a lesson many of us need to learn.

To be gentle (v. 7) a man must be strong. The cardinal quality of a strong Christian should be that he is a gentleman, or she a gentlewoman. If not, there is not real strength in the life.

Paul gave not only a message, he gave himself—his very soul (v. 8). The people to whom he ministered were "dear" to him. The pastor who looks down at his congregation with hardness, and perhaps hatred for some individual, needs to read this passage and find Paul's secret of success.

He labored with his hands to support himself (v. 9), lest anyone think he was a burden to them. Let no one think that this means that a preacher is not worthy of support. Christ Himself declares that the laborer is worthy of his hire (Luke 10:7). But it does show Paul's fine spirit of devotion and sacrifice.

3. He was unblamable (vv. 10-12). Holy in his life before God, Paul was ready to live righteously before men, and thus to stand unblamable before them and before his Lord. This indeed is a life worthy in the sight of God (v. 12).

In other words, the preacher was able to say to his listeners, "My life shows you what I mean by my preaching." The true preacher of the gospel will never be satisfied to be a signpost, pointing a way in which he does not walk.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

Sailor-Princess

THE best features of both—a princess frock and the trim, clever lines of a sailor collar and tie—are combined in this spirited frock. Make it of launderable cotton in a light shade. Do the trim in bright blue linen or in a pastel.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1966 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Size 13, short sleeves, requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material; ¾ yard contrast for collar, bow and cuffs.

Collarless Two-Piecer

IT HAS the new striped neckline look—the clean, comfortable lines of the collarless cardigan! Do it in soft rayon crepes or in fresh-as-paint summer cottons. Make the tailored collar vestee of pique—interchange it with a frilled jabot for dressy wear.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1930 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 jacket, short sleeve, requires 2 yards of 39-inch material; skirt, 2 yards.

To remove a tight glass stopper, wrap around the neck of the bottle a cloth that has been wrung out of hot water, or soak it in vinegar for a while. Work it gently and it will soon loosen.

A piece of velvet or corduroy placed in the heel of your shoe will make your stockings wear longer.

If you have any made-up starch left after washing, use it on the linoleum. It lends a gloss and the floor stays clean longer.

Keep a small box near your laundry tubs. You'll find it convenient to hold the buttons, snaps and other pieces that may come off clothes during the washing process.

Why don't you make a vestee with three jabots that button on for quick change?

Dip your measuring cup or spoon in scalding hot water just before measuring molasses. You'll find the molasses will run out easily.

To avoid needle marks when shortening a raincoat, use adhesive tape as a hem binder instead of sewing. To lengthen it later, just remove the adhesive tape.

The clothesline can be cleaned by wrapping it around the washboard and scrubbing it with a brush and soapsuds.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Christopher Columbus is credited with bringing first reports of rubber to the civilized world, but rubber relics found among Mayan ruins lead some scientists to believe that rubber items were in use in the eleventh century.

Rubber, both wild and plantation, grows best in an area 10 degrees either side of the equator.

The production of one complete large bomber tire takes as much time as does the making of several truck tires, or up to 60 passenger car tires of the most popular size. The demand for large tires is severely straining the production facilities of the industry.

BLOCKED ARMY PROMOTIONS

The army is pulling all sorts of wires backstage in the senate to break the log-jam against permanent wartime promotions—especially those of General Somervell and General Patton.

The senate military affairs committee some time ago proposed a policy against rushing through permanent promotions in wartime, arguing that temporary promotions were sufficient and that permanent promotions could come after the war when the senate and the public could survey all of an officer's record.

Some senators still remember the manner in which General Pershing was jumped from the rank of captain to brigadier general after he married the daughter of Sen. Francis E. Warren, then chairman of the military affairs committee; and they recall also the resentment this caused in the army.

However, the policy of blocking permanent wartime promotions is being opposed by the army's efficient lobby on Capitol Hill; and recently, a new move was made to put through promotions for Generals Patton and Somervell.

Their names had been before a subcommittee which was adamant against promotion. Patton is now only colonel though holding the temporary rank of lieutenant general. Somervell's rank is similar.

So Chairman Bob Reynolds of the military affairs committee put their names before a subcommittee including himself, Elbert Thomas of Utah, and Warren Austin of Vermont. Significantly sandwiched in between Patton's and Somervell's names is that of General Wainwright, now a prisoner in Japan, whom every senator is anxious to promote. So it will be difficult for the subcommittee to promote one without the other two.

GRILLING GENERAL HERSHEY

Draft director Lewis B. Hershey and manpower boss Paul McNutt came in for some rough handling regarding the bungled draft situation at a closed-door meeting of the house military affairs committee the other day. Members took their hair down and said a lot of things that have been rankling in their bosoms about conflicting draft orders which have promoted confusion.

After the meeting adjourned, the committee announced that it had refused to approve a labor draft bill. Inside fact, however, is that formal action against the labor draft was taken only after the committee had heard a furious grenaading against the Hershey-McNutt team, including a demand that both be fired and replaced by a single draft czar.

Chairman Andrew J. May of Kentucky, Rep. Walter G. Andrews of New York, ranking committee Republican, and Reps. Ewing Thomas of Texas, John M. Costello of California, Leslie Arends of Illinois and Forest Harness of Indiana all got in some forthright licks against the fumbling of the manpower and draft program.

The assault was led by Texas' two-fisted Thomason, who declared that one man should be put in complete charge of both military and industrial manpower with the nation at war.

MYSTERIOUS HOSPITAL

There is something awfully mysterious about the war department's determination to get rid of the Breakers hotel in Palm Beach as an army hospital, and the extent to which Attorney General Biddle seems anxious to cooperate.

In order to unravel the mystery, the Truman committee called upon Biddle for the Breakers hotel report prepared by his two-fisted young Assistant Attorney General Norman Littell. Littell, who is in charge of lands acquisition, had pointed to the foolishness of spending a lot of money making a hotel into a hospital and then turning it back to the Florida East Coast railroad just when we are on the verge of a second front and do not know what our casualties will be.

But when Biddle received the Truman committee's request, he got in touch with Rudolph Halley, its acting chief investigator, and asked him to withdraw the request. Halley diplomatically complied.

But next day, when members of the Truman committee heard about it, they called up the justice department and subpoenaed the Littell report.

Whereupon Biddle promptly surrendered. He asked that the subpoena be withdrawn and he finally sent the Littell report to the committee. Meanwhile, the army is holding up its plans to evacuate the Breakers.

Hybrid Corn Yields 95 Bushels to Acre

By Planting Thicker, 104 Bushels Resulted

Hybrid corn's ability to produce more bushels per acre than open-pollinated varieties was compared to the "superiority of a well-bred dairy cow over a scrub animal" by Prof. D. F. Beard, extension agronomist of the agricultural extension service of Ohio State university.

"In hybrid corn, we have a better bred strain of plants capable of converting raw materials such as nitrogen, phosphorus, potash, water, carbon dioxide and other elements into corn at more efficient rates than the old scrub open-pollinated varieties. On the same land and with the same 'feed' provided, good hybrids will yield 10 to 12 bushels more corn per acre than open-pollinated varieties. Moreover, the hybrid plants are sturdier and show less tendency to lodge."

In the case of both hybrid corn and pedigreed dairy stock, the matter of ample feed and a well-balanced ration are essential if maximum production is to be achieved. With hybrid corn, this means providing the soil with sufficient plant foods in the proper balance, via the fertilizer bag.

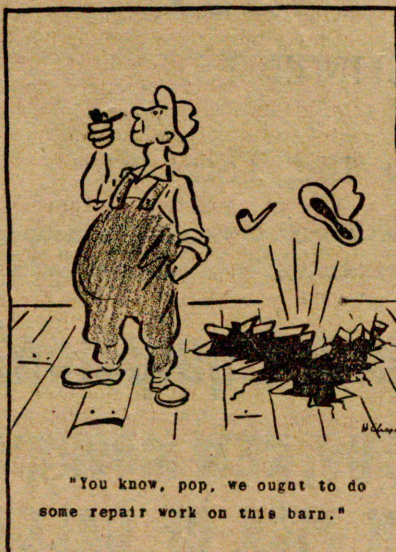

Four Plants Per Hill.

Professor Beard emphasized that in addition to the use of more fertilizer, farmers could profitably adopt the practice of planting hybrid corn thicker to obtain greater yields.

"At the Ohio agricultural experiment station," he said, "good corn hybrids yielded 95 bushels to the acre as a two-year average, and open-pollinated corn 80 bushels, when both were thinned to three plants per hill. With four plants per hill, however, the hybrids yielded 104.3 bushels per acre and the open-pollinated varieties 84.1."

The difference in favor of hybrids increased from 15 bushels to 20.2 bushels per acre for the extra plant per hill. This principle was borne out last summer, in a southern Ohio location, with later maturing hybrids, where stands of three plants per hill produced average yields of 92.8 bushels per acre and stands averaging 3 1/2 plants per hill gave yields of 101.9 bushels per acre.

"Unless heavier fertilization and thicker planting go along with good corn hybrids, users of hybrid seed fail to cash in on all the advantages of hybrids."

Hens With Paralysis

Should Be Culled Out

When culling hens, look them in the eye, says Dr. W. C. Thompson of Rutgers university.

One of the telltale signs of fowl paralysis—it has several forms—is a gray eye with an irregular pupil. That is, the iris, the colored part of a normal eye, is gray, and the pupil is irregular in outline when a bird is diseased, instead of being evenly oval or well rounded. In addition, the eye may be "fishy" or bulging.

Any bird with this eye condition should be removed from the flock. Lame birds that show no foot injuries to account for the lameness should be removed too as suspected carriers of fowl paralysis. The diseased birds may lay for a while, but eventually they lose weight and go out of production. If left in the flock, they endanger the other birds.

The majority of fowl paralysis cases occur in birds from 4 to 12 months old, the poultry specialist says, although older birds frequently contract the disease. Since the disease effects many birds just as they begin to lay and repay the expense of their raising, fowl paralysis is costly to the poultrymen.

Hatching Eggs Should

Be Carefully Selected

Best results in hatching are obtained from eggs that run about 24 ounces per dozen. Eggs should be well formed, of good shell texture, and of the color which is proper for the breed you are growing. Eggs which are small, round, short or thin-shelled should not be saved for hatching. During the cold weather they should be carefully stored to prevent chilling and other dangers which may make them infertile.

News-Bulletin where a Palos Park reader objects to killing fox.

I, as a sportsman and member of the Illinois Federation highly endorse the killing of fox to reduce their population as they are infesting Will county in great numbers, destroying much poultry and wild life. I have conducted about 70 per cent of the hunts taking place in the county this year for the sole purpose of riding the county of its worst predator.

Although there is a scarcity of shells the sportsman feels that he is willing to part with his supply for such a worth cause. Apparently Mr. Eberman has never seen the amount of wild life consisting mostly of Pheasant and Quail that can be found in and around a fox den. As he blames the hunter and sportsman for the lack of wild game he does not realize that we the sportsmen and hunters have only a 10 day season with 10 hours a day for the year whilst he fox hunts 24 hours a day 365 days a year.

I wonder how the so called conservationist feels as he walks down the street with his wife or daughter sporting a fur coat which took about 5 to 100 animal pelts to make. Many coats are made of Muskrats, raccoon and possum which are harmless to the fullest degree.

Also Mr. Eberman is very unfamiliar with the state game law which prohibits the shooting of hawks of all species.

Mr. H. R. Weiss, sheriff of Holmes County, Ohio from whom I have received a letter states that the pictures which were printed in "Life" magazine dated March 13th were posed to suit the photographer. In no way do they correspond with the formality of a fox hunt drive. He also made a reply to Life magazine which published his story in the April 3 issue. I suggest that Mr. Eberman pick up this issue and read the article on pages 2 and 4. I do not understand why those pictures would be so apt to nauseate him when the entire magazine consists of war scenes, killing and suffering with minors looking on.

As for the trouble caused by rabbits and mice? If this man would do as he suggests the farmer do, put a little fence around the garden I don't think the rabbits would bother the vegetables. As for mice, they are not destructive in gardens. I have yet to see or hear of any eating away on a head of cabbage or on a cucumber.

I am speaking for the sportsmen and hunters of Will and Cook Counties who are backing my statements.

Yours truly,
John H. Ruthenbeck.

What They Know About War

Allied Force Headquarters, Mediterranean Theatre: Its often been said that people back home know more about how the war is going than the men who are fighting it, but that doesn't hold true for the soldiers of an anti-aircraft artillery battalion that is helping to defend the coastline of North Africa against Nazi raiders.

While these men maintain a constant alert to beat off any attempted raid, they learn about the war and the world at the same time. The scheme is one devised by their commanding officer Lt. Col. Milton Heilfron of San Francisco, Cal. which he calls an Orientation program. The program includes the latest in war news, usually more complete than the reports sent to the newspapers; up to date maps of the world's battlefronts showing all the activity in every theater of operations and discussions analysing and interpreting these varied operations.

There are lectures by diplomats and men of other nations who visit the camp. Officers and soldiers from the armies of the Allied Nations, the consuls of several countries and other outstanding men have all talked to these soldiers and then submitted to a barrage of questions after the lectures.

There are other phases of this program that have helped to raise an already high morale, and has raised the fighting ability of the men too.

Among the soldiers "scholars" in this unit is Pfc. Wm. L. Merritt of 151st and 52nd Ave., Tinley Park.
